OUR PILLARS

I PROGRAMMING Offer diverse, exceptional and innovative programming.

II ENGAGEMENT Bring music to the community and the community to music.

III PARTNERSHIP Collaborate with others to leverage resources, build bridges, and enhance programs.

IV LEARNING Develop life-skills, critical thinking, and self-awareness through music.
“The TSO must be open to innovative and groundbreaking ways to communicate our art; whether it is visual technology or something we are not yet aware of, we must be adaptive to an ever-changing environment. We must embrace future tools of our craft and utilize them to enhance current programming, where appropriate, and develop new programming.”

José Luis Gomez, Music Director

PERFORMANCES:

Opening Night: Classic Gershwin

Aladdin and Other Tales

Schubert, Mozart & Strauss: 3 Major Works

Youthful Exuberance from Mozart and Dvořák

The Romero Guitar Quartet

An Alpine Symphony
Offer diverse, exceptional and innovative programming.

New Patron Growth

Led by the popularity of The Planets on the Big Screen, the Classic Series had a record number of new ticket buyers. New patrons were up in all programming.

Mei-Ann Chen conducted The Planets while images were projected on a big screen over the orchestra.
PARTNERSHIP

Collaborate with others to leverage resources, build bridges and enhance programs.

The Tucson Symphony collaborated with 36 schools, businesses, civic and non-profit organizations.

Fathers and daughters dined and danced at the 59th Annual Tucson Symphony Honors Cotillion at Westin La Paloma in November. Event proceeds benefited the TSO.

Jessica Campbell, TSO bassoon/contrabassoon and a teacher delivered a KOLD13 editorial about the importance of music and TSO’s commitment to bring people together.

Civic Orchestra of Tucson’s instrument “petting zoo” was part of the fun at TSO family concerts.

TSO and Tucson International Jewish Film Festival co-presented Drawing Against Oblivion at the JCC when TSO performed Schoenberg’s A Survivor from Warsaw. A performance of Ravel’s Kaddish and a TSO Conversation followed the film.

Classic Gershwin launched 2016-17 with the most successful opening weekend sales in a decade.

Just For Kids Opening Day featured the String Quartet and an outdoor festival that included the Children’s Museum and Trail Dust Town.

A sold-out Ride & Dine event kicked off the season.

The inaugural Party of Note, “Music to Mars,” featured a performance of Our Rusty Planet: Ode to a Martian Future Past, a Mars exploration-based work for piano commissioned by Dr. Peter Smith, scientist and NASA project leader.

Handel’s Messiah concert was conducted by an early music specialist and featured period instruments, such as this portative organ, for the first time.

The String Quartet performed a holiday concert at The Lodge at Ventana Canyon.
Alexander Lipay celebrated his 10th season as principal flute performing Bach’s Orchestral Suite No. 2. In February, he won a Grammy® Award for Best Engineered Album, Classical.

Music Director José Luis Gomez announced his inaugural season to subscribers and donors at Tucson Symphony Center. He chose music reflecting his life’s musical journey.

Six grand pianos were on stage for The Piano Bash. Featuring Paula Fan, Jeff Haskell, Rex Woods, Christopher Cano, Kyungsun Choi and Rachael and Melissa Radtke, and emceed by All-American UA basketball star Bob Elliott, the evening ranged from works for solo piano to the six-piano Star and Stripes Forever grand finale.

Melissa and Rachael Radtke were winners of the 2016-17 TSO Young Artists Competition.

The season ended with a spectacular performance of Richard Strauss’ An Alpine Symphony. José Luis Gomez led more than 120 musicians through an action-packed program that used unusual instruments such as a bass oboe, Wagner tubas and a wind machine manned by Homero Cerón pictured above.

Tom McKinney was named President and CEO of the Tucson Symphony. He joined the TSO in 2015 as Vice President of Development.

At Bravo TSO, donors who participate in Partner with a Player get to sit next to the musicians they are sponsoring. Katie Miller, Principal Trumpet, Connie Hillman Family Foundation Chair, is joined by Foundation representative Larry Adamson and his wife, Florence. The Tucson Symphony Orchestra with support provided by the Marshall Foundation launched TEAMtix so middle and high school band, orchestra and choir students can attend performances for free. The Marshall Foundation provides a ticket for the student and the TSO matches that with a ticket for a companion. Below Jane McCollum of the Marshall Foundation and TSO President & CEO Mark Blakeman present a $500 cash-prize to Sahuarita High School for having the most students register for TEAMtix.
